

ENLACE MID-LEVEL LEADERSHIP PROGRAM

The HACU Institute for Professional Development has launched the Enlace Mid-Level Leadership Program to help increase the number of top Latino/a talent for leadership positions in higher education. Research studies have shown the importance of providing more support and individually tailored training for today's middle managers to become highly effective senior leaders of tomorrow.

The Enlace Mid-Level Leadership Program is a six-month leadership development program designed for college and university professional personnel. Applications and nominations to the program will be accepted each spring. The program begins in the fall and workshops are held in conjunction with the HACU Annual Conference, the program concludes the following spring during the Capitol Forum.

Who Should Apply/Nominations

Mid-level leaders are defined as academic or non-academic support personnel within the structure of higher education organizations. Examples include academic department chairpersons, education program directors, student support directors, coordinators, team leaders, etc.

Main Topics Areas

Several topics will be covered during the six-month program. They include academic and student affairs management, regional institutional accreditation, diversity, equity, and inclusion, higher education advocacy issues, and personal interaction with our professional search firm partners.
